For the first evening trial of the year the attendance was excellent, due no doubt to the very nice spell of weather. First of all thanks to the landowner Tony Hayton for the use of Bainsbeck Farm, and to all the observers who made the effort to help.

This series is sponsored by Matthew Alpe whose business is Inch Perfect Trials so perhaps it's only right that he should prove to be the outright winner of the trial and he has made a generous offer for this series.

For all riders that take part in at least four rounds of this five round evening series, their names will go into a hat come November after the last round and one will be drawn out, the prize being a free attendance at one of the Inch Perfect training days, either using your own bike or a school machine. Can't say fairer than that!

The next trial is again an evening event on Wednesday June 13 at Wrayton Hall Farm, Wrayton with a 6pm start time.

In the results above, "incomplete" refers to there not being enough scores on the observer boards to record a result.

Eric Kitchen was again in attendance and his pictures will appear on the the Lancs County website in a few days.
